AT KLONDIKE.

Letters Reviewed in Auburn from a Miner in the New El Dorado.

It now looks as though Auburn and Lewiston people were to become as gold crazy as the citizens of the Pacific slope. The present mania bids fair to eclipse the excitement of '49 and many of the citizens are contemplating a journey to Alaska. The excitement reached a climax when it was reported that 70 miners had returned to Seattle with over $700,000 of the precious metal, says the Lewiston Sun.

A Sun man who had heard of the intentions of a few local men to visit the El Dorado of Alaska, called upon Mrs. Charles Dinsmore of Western avenue, Auburn, and had a very pleasant interview with her. She said she had a son in the Klondike region who had mined there with the best results for the past twenty years. He started from Iowa, where they were then living in 1873 and with a party of friends prospected in the Black Hills. He worked there for two years and being of a roving disposition he left for Alaska. Here he has mined throughout the region of the Yukon and its tributaries. When he first went there, no machinery was used in crushing quartz and with a party of fellow miners he returned to Seattle and purchased a "crusher" which they found to be a paying investment.

He writes home that there is no particular danger from the cold as they live largely on fats and are clothed with the heaviest of furs. He says that it is an exceedingly rough country and that dogs are generally used as a means of conveyance, as donkeys are not to be readily procured in that frozen country. He has been out on a hunting expedition with his canine friends for 30 days, stopping wherever night overtook him and his only trouble from the cold was one day when he froze an ear while baking bread. This seems exceedingly strange but undoubtedly at that time he did not take the customary precaution.

With a team of eight dogs they often travel as far as eighty miles a day, and when he wrote his last letter he was obliged to travel 900 miles to get to a post office. The mail in years past has only left his nearest government office once a year. Thus it will be seen that Mrs. Dinsmore only hears from her son once in a great while and it is not strange that at certain times she fears that her boy may have been overcome by the cold in that far off country. He has written home that although an old miner, he has found the quartz of Alaska to be the richest he has ever seen. The summer season begins in May and ends in September, and the rest of the year is so cold that no mining whatever can be carried on. During the winter the miners congregate and pass the long months in hunting and preparing for the next season. One winter Mr. Dinsmore camped with 17 men and each one helped the other to pass away the long hours. The shortest day in the year is about one hour and a quarter and one would naturally think that it would be hard telling when it was time to retire. Mrs. Dinsmore said that her son had spent one winter within the Arctic circle, and if he returns to Auburn this fall, as he is expected, he will doubtless have some interesting experiences to relate. He has always made it well and his letters home, which necessarily come "few and far between," always contain a good sized check. Although he has met with good success he has spent a large amount buying claims and working them, but he was fortunate enough to have been in the Klondike region he is to-day undoubtedly a rich man.

Auburn and Lewiston people are talking of the gold crazy and the big strikes of "tenderfoot" all them with desire to do a little shoveling, when a shovelful pans out $4. A well known Auburn business man was around Wednesday morning trying to get up a party and they promise that January will see them abandoning the "lovely village of the plain" for the land of riches. Lewiston will also be in it and a well known wine dealer of Lincoln street says that he surely will be a citizen of the Klondike camps. Portland Press.

WENT OVER THE DAM.

Fatal Accident to Twelve Year Old Boy at Springvale.

Leland, the twelve year old son of Levi Harmon, was drowned at Springvale, July 21st. He, with three other boys were swimming in the pond above the grist mill. He saw a muskrat and started to swim for it, but being a weak swimmer he was carried over the dam. His body was recovered among the rocks near the Portland and Rochester bridge. His neck was found to be broken, and it is supposed that death was instantaneous.

Down the Mountain.
An engine, passenger car and baggage trailer on the Mount Washington railroad were blown from the platform at the summit of the mountain last July 14 and dashed down the side of the mountain to complete destruction. The wind was at that time blowing a hurricane, and its terrific force and power were well exemplified by the ease with which it lifted the entire train from the track and hurled it down the rocky ledges of the precipitous summit. At the time of the accident there was no one on the train and a possible horrible fatal result was thus averted. The engine and cars were, however, completely demolished.

The accident caused no interruption in the train service of the road, thanks to its complete equipment and excellent management.

House of J. L. Robinson at Windham Destroyed.
The extensive and commodious residence and stable of Joseph L. Robinson of South Windham, situated on High street near this village, were totally consumed by fire about noon July 21.

It was discovered in the stable which contained a large quantity of hay, and as the wind was blowing strong in the direction of the house it was quickly seen to be impossible to save that. The horses and carriages were saved, also quite a quantity of furniture in a damaged condition. These buildings were erected in 1895, and were the most expensive of any in this section of the country. The cause of the fire is unknown; insurance $15,000.

Death of Mother of Ex-Governor Connor.

Mary Brant Connor, aged 87, died at her home in Fairfield, Thursday morning at 3 o'clock. Mrs. Connor was the mother of ex-Governor Seldon Connor, U. S. pension agent at Augusta. In 1834 she married William Connor, a wealthy and prominent lumberman of Maine. To them were born six children, all living to-day, being Mrs. William Brooks of Haverhill, Mass., Seldon Connor, Virgil Connor, Misses Linda, Lizzie, and Lucia Connor of Fairfield. Mrs. Connor has been ill for some months though the end was very unexpected.

Terrific Tornado and Hail Storm.

There was a terrific tornado and hail storm in Auburn July 23rd. About one o'clock the threatening clouds broke and such a downfall of hail stones cannot be remembered by the oldest inhabitant. A tornado accompanied the hail and rain and several large trees were broken to the ground; gardens were cut to pieces and many trees had branches stripped from them. Hail stones could be gathered by the double handful; much glass was broken and the loss from the combined wind, hail and rain must be thousands of dollars.

A good time reported. The severe rain storm of last week did much damage to roads and the grass on low lands and meadows. Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Horn of Massachusetts, are spending a few weeks with Mrs. Horn's mother, Mary J. Pulsifer. Several farmers who are nearly through with their haying report a good crop; one man says he shall get twice his usual amount. He stands four feet eight inches in height, and weighs just seventy pounds; sickness in infancy is supposed to be the cause of his small size.

DENMARK.
Miss Jennie Walker of South Paris, is in town on a visit of two weeks. S. A. Poor and wife of Sebago, attended church in town last Sabbath. The farmers are the busiest, I think they ever were; haying and hoeing all together. Belcher's son, wife and child, and Miss Barnes of Lawrence, and his daughter and little girl from Lynn came Saturday on a visit home.

The memorial window presented to the Congregational church, by Dr. Burnham of Jefferson, N. H., was appropriately dedicated last Sunday; a large congregation was present.
